By combining cutting edge technology with tailor-made trivia eM Play offers a path breaking approach to engage event audiences. This international TV game show module creates high-voltage experience like never before. The show content can be created for diverse subjects like technology, sports, films, business or just about any theme that one can imagine.

Approach

The Game Show host will divide the participants into teams. Each team leader will be given a high tech RF keypad.

Game Show questions will be projected on the AV screen. The teams send their responses using the keypads. The scores are revealed after every round or at the appropriate time to hold the audience to the edge of their seats.

Gameshow Modules

Module 1:

A2E

A2E is a class apart when it comes to a game designed within the risk and return elements. An multiple-choice question round where questions are based on plethora of topics like cricket, movies, sports etc. with a good mixture of videos and images.

The best part of the game show design is its pattern of revealing answers. The design is sure to allow adrenaline pump into the participants, causing some nail biting moments in the show.

QUESTION

Which team did India beat in the 1983 World Cup semi finals?

count down timer 10 sec

- A England
- B West Indies
- C Pakistan
- D Australia
- E Sri Lanka

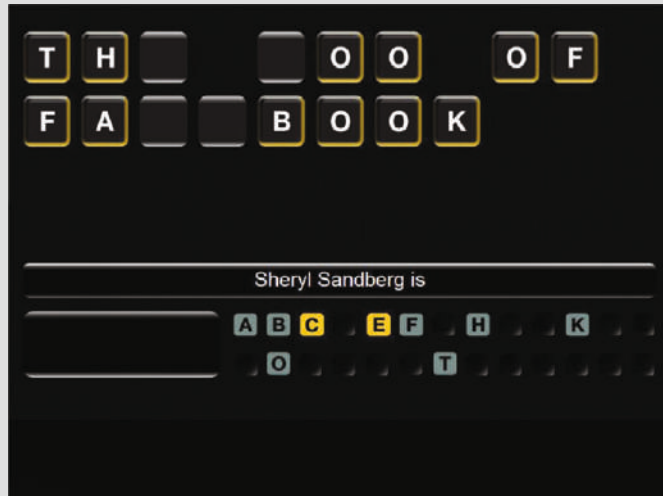

Module 2:

Solve The Phrase (STP)

The screen shows an incomplete sentence or phrase with a hint. The letters fill in gradually based on the cues the host at game show provides.

This is buzzer round; meaning the team that hits the buzzer first gets a chance to answer first. The questions are not passed.

Module 3:

Six of a Kind

Each team gets to select a representative to play this round. The representative can pick a category where (s)he has to answer 6 questions of the chosen subject.

Let's say a category chosen is Indian Cities. 6 cities are successively revealed on the screen one by one. Within the given time, if the participant is able to answer all questions, earns maximum points.

Module 4: Klooles

Either 2 individuals or 2 teams play against each other. The task is to crack a certain phrase or set of alphabets. Participants have 30 seconds to plug in their alphabets using the RF keypad. In case the participant fails, the turn shifts.

The team first completing the phrases wins!

THE CLOSING

The winners are invited on stage

Note

Client questions can be incorporated.
